NEGRO CHILD'S FATAL BURNS.

Clothing Ignited While Dressing by a Grate Yesterday Morning.

BURNED ALL OVER.

Injuries Pronounced Almost Necessarily Fatal by Dr. Woodard.

A negro child named James Oten was probably fatally burned yesterday morning at an early hour, in a cabin on 15th street between Virginia and Clay. The boy is about ten years old and while dressing in front of a grate his clothing caught on fire. He ran screaming out into the street and lay writhing on the ground until all of his clothing had been burned off.

His mother, Maggie Oten, who cooks at a Ninth Street restaurant, was not at home and the only witnesses were three very small children left in the boy's charge.

Neighbors who heard the screams found the child lying on the street. Dr. Woodard, who lives close by, reached the child in a short while and attended to his injuries, which he pronounced almost necessarily fatal. The burns extended all over the stomach, back, sides, face and neck of the boy. He was alive yesterday afternoon at three o'clock.

BROWN HELD

Fighting Out Their Differences In Court.

The examining trial of Phil H. Brown, colored, editor of the Morning News, was called in the County Court Thursday and concluded yesterday. Brown is charged by Rev. G. Cornelius Parker, a Methodist preacher of Lexington, with criminally libeling him.

Brown recently accused Parker of drunkenness and general conduct unbecoming the cloth. Brown testified that he [Parker] and one other negro preacher went to Parker's parsonage at Lexington, and with whiskey, purchased with the proceeds of a church collection, got very drunk. Various witnesses, including an Lexington saloonkeeper, were introduced to corroborate the colored editor's testimony.

The case was argued yesterday, the speeches occupying nearly all day. Judge Breathitt held Brown over under a bond of $100, which he gave.

DIDN'T GET IT.

Y. M. C. A. Could Not Get Up $8,000.

The attempt to raise $8,000 in 10 days for the Y. M. C. A. failed Thursday afternoon, only $2,700 being subscribed. It became evident early in the attempt that it was the wrong season to try to raise the money. The people were all too busy to talk to canvassers. Mr. Will A. House, who was in charge of the movement, said he would return at some future time and complete the work.

At Bethel College.

The young ladies of Bethel College gave a musical recitation at the college last night, which was followed by the singing of the young ladies.

Council Meeting.

The last regular meeting of the council for December was held last night.

The Omicron Club's annual dinner will be given at Hotel Latham the evening of Dec. 29th. Numerous entertainments are on the calendar for Christmas week.

LAST SURVIVOR PASSES AWAY

Patient in Western Asylum With Remarkable History.

CAME HERE IN 1854.

Born in Lexington Asylum and Was a State Patient 77 Years.

Lucy Darby, the last survivor of the 113 patients transferred from the Lexington asylum to the Western Asylum when it was opened, Nov. 21, 1854, died yesterday of old age, aged 77 years. She sustained a fracture of a hip bone years ago and had been bed-ridden ever since and totally blind. She was born in the Lexington asylum, her mother being a patient, and lived there all of her life until she came here when 25 years old. She was an idiot from birth, without a ray of intelligence. She cost the State during her long life more than $10,000 in per capita payments. She had no relatives and was buried at the institution. All of her life except the two or three days required to come from Lexington was spent within the walls of an asylum.

VIRGIL MATTHEWS

Dies in Nashville After Long Illness.

Mr. J. Virgil Matthews, formerly of this city, died at his home in Nashville a few days ago. He was at one time engaged in the tobacco business here and several years ago suffered a stroke of paralysis while at Trenton. He never fully recovered from the attack. Deceased was a native of Robertson county, Tennessee, and was about forty-five years old. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Mattie Dillard, a daughter of the late Samuel Dillard, and two daughters.

From New York Town

Newspaper of Gotham Doing by Our Correspondent—"Pat" Sheedy to Open Unique Gallery of Art—City to Have Music Central.

trove existed in Europe was pointed out several weeks ago in a cable dispatch from Paris.

Sheedy has been in communication with the present owners and when they deliver the paintings in New York he will be able to make satisfactory arrangements for their disposition.

These canvases will not constitute the entire stock, for the famous paintings which the noted amateur, who has now become a professional, acquired from Rainsell, the bandit, will also be on view. Two hundred other art works, some of them from the brushes of old masters and a few now innocent of varnish, will be displayed.

It was through the mediation of Sheedy that the famous Gainsborough of the duchess of Devonshire, which was stolen, was recovered in Chicago and returned to its owner.

TO SEND MUSIC BY TELEPHONE.

Within a few weeks New Yorkers will have the benefit of one of the most wonderful electrical inventions of the age—the telharmonic. This is an instrument for the transmission of music from a central keyboard to the homes, hotels, restaurants and public places of a city.

At a cost of more than $40,000 the central musical "plant" has been established at a convenient point in Manhattan. The instrument is virtually perfected, and in a short time it is expected, the company will be ready to offer its musical wares to the public. At no great cost the householder, flat dweller or restaurant proprietor may have a telharmonic installed, connected by wire with the central instrument or instruments, and by simply pushing a button will be able to turn on the music. The instrument that will be placed in the homes is a small affair and can easily be hidden by a grouping of flowers.

Four grades of music will be available—grand opera, pipe organ, orchestral or piano.

Tests thus far made show that the rich tones of the central instrument are preserved in transmission, and there is no marring of the music by the rasping sound of the phonograph. The inventor of the telharmonic and the capitalists who are backing him are confident that the instrument will not only have connections with thousands of homes here, but will soon be used almost universally by the restaurant keepers.

FEDERAL BUILDING CATS WELL CARED FOR.

The cats in the basement of the Federal building receive better treatment than any other such aggregation in New York. This is particularly true of Black Tom and his three cronies. Besides coming in for the best of fare from their guardian, old Barney, the watchman, the quartette has a feast twice a week on catnip, while it is in season. Every Tuesday and Friday he brings a bundle of the herb from his country place in Long Island, or if he is staying in the city he has his gardener make a special trip to bring it in.

As regularly as these days come along Black Tom and his four pals drop in and stroll around. If there is any delay on the part of Taylor, the postmaster's colored man, to spread the feast, Mr. Wilcox is apprised of it by the four cats solemnly filing into his private office, taking up their station on his desk and gazing at him.

In addition to his cats have become used to drinking nothing but the soft, pure rain water which accumulates for their special benefit in a cistern on the roof. Barney discovered this taste of his pets by watching them trot out on the roof and eagerly lap up the water in the gutters after every rainfall. Snapping at nothing to keep the four in good humor he built a small cistern on the roof.

TINY BOY WINS FIGHT TO ENTER SCHOOL.

The happiest boy in New York is little Max Birenback, the seven-year-old son of Solomon Birenback, for he has been allowed to again take his place among his companions in school, who have long teased him for being too small to enter their classes.

Ever since the fall term opened Max has been trying his best to be admitted, but the teachers refused to let him stay in school.

In height he is only a little over two feet, while the teachers of the school gave a broad guess that he weighed only 17 pounds. Their excuse was that they feared to step on him or that he would be injured by the larger children, and they thought some day drop through a crack, fall into an ink bottle or in some other way lose himself.

The boy's father put the matter before the board of education and a committee was appointed to visit the Birenback home the other evening. Max spoke up in his own defense.

"They say I weigh only 17 pounds," said he, "but they're just so. Now look and see if you don't think I weigh more than that."

The visitors looked, but while it was evident Max had their sympathy it was also plain that they doubted too. "Well settle the matter," said one of them, "by taking the boy to the grocery store downstairs and placing him on the scales."

Max led the way and nine anxious Birenbacks followed. The little fellow stepped on the scales and bore down with all his might. At exactly 33 pounds he tipped the bar. There was a shout of joy from the boy.

This decided the matter with the board members. They wrote a note to the Livingston street principal, ordering him to admit Max Birenback to school without delay.

CRUISER'S PLATE VANISHES BUT REAPPEARS.

Capt. Colwell, of the United States cruiser Denver, after the manner of all careful, if hospitable, hosts, did not neglect to count his spoons and his plate when the ball, which he and his officers tendered Havana society Wednesday night, October 24, was drawing to a brilliant close. The result of this more or less perfunctory attention to a mere housekeeping detail was, to say the least, extraordinary.

The Denver was the first American man of war to reach Havana harbor at the height of the late unpleasantness, when the capital seemed on the verge of capture by the insurgents. Social amenities of various sorts followed, the culmination being the announcement of a ball on the Denver on the eve of the departure of the vessel for northern waters and the susceptible Cuban heart beat warmly in response.

At eight o'clock on the night set for the ball the cruiser was outlined in incandescent lights, with huge dock clusters over which the flags of all nations made a brilliant canopy.

Capt. Colwell was presented with a handsome gold watch in the name of the Cubans. Capt. Colwell expressed his deep gratitude and then spoke as follows:

"Some of the cups of the rich and artistic service given this boat on the day of its baptism by the citizens of Havana have disappeared. Of course, I know perfectly well that there has been no robbery committed, and that none of you are going to carry away in the deep pockets of your dress suits a cup or a saucer of champagne punch merely for the sake of the name. I thoroughly appreciate that it has been merely the prompting of an artistic impulse, and a desire to retain a souvenir of the Denver, but I would be very much obliged if the cups were returned to me."

THE KENTUCKIAN will send to the Jamestown Exposition the four most popular young women in Christian County. The Kentuckian will pay every cent of expense, including railroad fare; Pullman fare; meals on train; hotel bills, street car fare; admission to grounds and amusement concessions; side trips to points in the vicinity of the Exposition grounds. The contest is open to any young lady making her home in Christian County. For each year's subscription to the Kentuckian at $2.00 the subscriber will be entitled to cast 40 votes.

Our contest begins Nov. 15th and will continue for 6 months; to May 15.

In order that all subscribers to the Kentuckian may have an interest in this contest, all subscribers on our books at the time of this announcement will be entitled to 20 votes each, which 20 votes may be placed to the credit of any one candidate—provided they are cast before January 1, 1907.

YOU choose the candidate—We don't. The minute a girl is cast for a young woman she becomes a candidate and her name is placed upon the published list, together with the total vote cast for her up to the time the list is published.

When a subscription is received at this office the subscriber is first credited with the amount of his subscription and the number of votes his subscription represents is credited to the candidate named by him and entered in a special record book kept for the purpose. The vote will be COUNTED EVERY FRIDAY at noon, and each candidate will be credited with her new vote and her vote to date and the result will be published in the next issue of the Kentuckian.

A Change of Mind.

BY WILLIAM H. HAMMER.

(Copyright, 1906, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)
He had come home to America with hatred and revenge in his heart—bitter for the woman who had only ceased to love him when he trampled her love, as everything else, under foot, for revenge for the years through which she had gone on calmly believing him dead, and never dreaming of seeing his face again. Why revenge should be important in his mind he knew not. He hated the beautiful, fair woman who had been his wife; he would have divorced her long before the short time of happiness after the storm and stress of this terrible four years that he mockingly called "their married life."

She had despised him for his meanness, he read it in her face; she had scorned him for his evil temper and his "strange and haunting" blim, and gazing him into fresh, green, and deeper depths.

Yes, she had tried her best, her hardest. She had stood for him against his temptations with only the fervent strength that a loving woman can exert. She had only given up the struggle with his blim from her and her "pruning ways," as he said.

But he had not died after all. He was alive and fairly well off to-day, and he was journeying to New York to confront her, to revenge himself for the three years during which she had sailed her bark in calmer waters and under happier skies than heretofore.

He had planned it all out very carefully, living very abstemiously until his purpose was achieved, in order to bring it about the better. Why should she be happy when he had been miserable all these three long years? He had been miserable during their married life, save for the few brilliant days yet she had shared his secrets—he had been far more miserable ever since. "I have led a wretched life," he muttered to himself, as the train sped on. "Let her be wretched, too."

But she despised him, she spoke the martyrdom through which the pretty, proud girl had passed as his wife; the utter despair of knowing how hopeless she was by leaving the man she saw descending on the man she had once loved.

He forgot the woman as he had done her last, broken heart, broken with wistful eyes strained to terrible tension, hearing his hard words with which she moved his lips that had been so full of love, and in terrible, pitiful patience, he forgot the picture in the vision of the past.

A girl's lovely face rose up amid the shadows, laughing, smiling, like a rosebud in a garden of sweetest and golden light, and he whispered tender words to her, and she smiled back at him. Ah, well; she was his wife still; though the world might think him dead, and he would bring her back to him, and keep her there.

He waited near the doorway of her house the next evening, dark as the shadows to the quiet street, grimly unobtrusive, but fiercely determined all the same. He had learned all about her now. The pages of her life since he had left were laid bare for his inspection. The world still deemed him dead, and should go on thinking so until he told his wife the great news! His wife! She was thinking of becoming some one else's wife now, though. He smiled at the thought.

He knew the man well. He had been an old friend of hers in the years gone by, before her marriage, and he was a good man and true, and would stand for her (secretly) if she would the way for her very gently along the path of life. But it should never be never!

This very night he would see her, and tell her that she must give up the new and return to the old life, with him, of course. He wondered how she would take the news. She never screamed or faint or made a fuss, he murmured, and gave her some approbation in his thoughts for the remembrance.

And now he was watching her doorway to see her pass down the steps with the other man. She was going to the theater, he had ascertained, and a carriage stood waiting for her and for him. This situation was fairly humorous.

"If she only knew," he said to himself, and laughed silently as the door opened, and a woman came out with the light step and the graceful walk, he heard that he remembered so well in olden days.

And the ray from the carriage lamp fell on her upturned face, and revealed it absolutely truthfully, to the watcher in the street.

But it gave him a sudden start of surprise. He had remembered the girl face that he had married, with its dainty smiles and drooping, and tender, child-like eyes, with its rings of golden hair lying loosely over the white brows, and the rose-tinted complexion and going across the fair cheeks, but this was not the face that shone before him now.

It was a woman who had known sorrow, who had stood face to face with deep affliction, who had shed tears from her very heart, and prayed prayers from her inner soul. The face was stern, beautiful, powerful, with its light of dignified resolve and its strangely pathetic smile; but it was not the face of a husband's wife any longer—only the presentation of any loving and loyal and woman.

and at the end found peace in the love of a true and noble-hearted man. The watcher in the street, under his wild desire to revenge himself for his misfortune on her, who had never added to them by one iota, felt a sudden pang for the woman he was about to drag back into his life.

The lover of the background looked kindly and true and protecting as he followed her down to the waiting carriage. He bent to help her as she stepped in, and gave her a pretty little smile at him, a smile full of love and trustfulness in his brave, resolute presence.

Then they drove away, and the street was quiet again, and only the crowding thoughts in the watcher's mind kept carnival.

He stole into the theater by and by, when he was tired of thinking out in the street, and he found a car seat where he had intended being seen. For a time he watched the changing expressions on her face as the play went on, the tender gladness, the surprised, the smile she turned to speak to her lover, the same sweetest of her smile at some pretty bit of the dainty story, the smile when a fair mother kissed her laughing baby to her breast. And perhaps it was a pity that they had had none. A pity, did he say? He was forgetting. It was well—well, indeed, for such as him. His better nature, hidden somewhere all these years, was now creeping out like a thing long hidden, shamed of its very existence.

He felt suddenly sorrow for his wife, for himself, for the other man. It would be hardly bitterly hard for her, he seemed to realize all at once; and why was he so eager to bring her back to him? She had not caused him pain. He thought, on the contrary, she had pleaded with him on her knees—on her knees, he remembered with tears streaming from those gentle eyes and a voice broken by sobs, she had pleaded with him to go away from his temptations and his temptations and start life anew with her. And he had laughed at her, and he had laughed at her, and at first he could have laughed outright at her madness, at the suggestion.

Why had he gone away now, back to Cuba? back to the other life, safe into oblivion again, and leave her as he had done her last—free? What? After he had come only to find her, after he had laid his plans so carefully and well, after he was fully determined to stay by her making some one else and herself happy—leave her?

And yet? And yet? He had known bitter sorrow, and her youth had been shortened by that sorrow. She was young no longer. Her eyes looked weary now, and the smile had faded from her lips as she sat back in the shadows. Would she never smile again after he had reclaimed her?

A great resolve was forming itself in his mind. He would go away again as he had come, into the dimness of the unknown, into that far world across the seas. He would fight out his hatred against himself. "Who knows? I might do better," he said, musingly. At any rate, she should be free; free to love a good man, free to be happy, and to smile as she had smiled to-night, free from him.

"I've never done a good deed in my life before," he said to himself, mockingly. "But I'll do one now. God knows, it costs me something, but I'll do it!"

And then he gave her one look—the last—she smiled again into the happy face of the other man, and stole away into the night.

Overconfidence. Overconfidence has been the ruin of many a man. It is better not to boast, but rather to remember that one is only human, and that the old negro who applied for work.

"Do you want to do chores for us?" said the gentleman on whom he had called.

"Deed I do," he said. "You look as if you were honest."

"Well, I don't know. You look as if you were honest."

"Kumel, I've got to go to bed, I'm tired."

"Why not?"

"Kumel, I don't know. You look as if you were honest."

"Why not?"

"Kumel, I don't know. You look as if you were honest."

"Why not?"

to blame.

from a pretty girl, a customer in his store.

The State Democratic Committee has paid all of the primary claims and will refund $2,400 to the candirebate.

The Senate has ordered the President's message printed in "normal" spelling, which is a square representation of the phonetic order. The same day the Senate gave the Presi-independent investigation of the negro soldiers at Brownsville, Texas.

Foraker and Kittredge are leading the anti-Roosevelt side.

night.
Matinee This Afternoon.
"East Lynne" Will Be Given.

The week at Holland's opera house, during which North Brothers Comedy Company has been a great one for habitues of the play house. This was the first engagement of this popular troupe and they have been greeted with highly appreciative audiences. Should they see proper to make a date at some future day they need have no fears of our people not going out to see them. The members of the troupe are all favorites and have well sustained the different roles in which they were cast. They are ladies and gentlemen who are entirely worthy of recognition, for by their deportment they have proven themselves such. Last night's performance of "His First False Step" brought out every member's full strength and the different parts were acted in a way that won much favorable comment.

This afternoon's matinee will crowd the building. One of the best plays of the repertoire will be on to-night, and it also ought to draw out a full house. The company will put on "A Fight for a Million." This is one of the strongest pieces composing the company's list of excellent plays. It has never been presented here before and will be a winner. The usual specialties, all of which are good, will be given at the matinee to-day and that thrilling play, "East Lynne" will be given. The story of East Lynne when first given to the world, nearly a half century ago, was the most popular book of the decade. When dramatized it took the theatrical world by storm. The children of to-day will have a chance of seeing what a real old-time play was. Many believe that the old-timers were better than the modern ones, often written to fill an empty purse more than to point a moral.

Remember Billy Keranda's Minstrels Xmas night.

Oh, How Dull!
The police are not shedding any saucer-sized tears on account of everybody again getting good. No, indeed. They are rather enjoying the calm that followed the busy time of Saturday and Sunday last. So quiet has everything been since last Wednesday up to yesterday morning that the man of the billy almost imagines that his place on the force is a sinecure. But yet they are a little apprehensive that trouble is brewing somewhere by somebody, so they have to keep both eyes open. The only thing that has happened since Wednesday to disturb the serenity and even tenor of the blue coats was Thursday, when a manufacturer and vendor of axe handles came to town and filled up before he had disposed of his handiwork. Going into one of the hardware stores and failing to sell, he got mad at the proprietor and used some very ugly words. A want of appreciation of such billingsgate caused the hardware man to have the fellow put under arrest. By depositing a V with the city judge, the countryman was permitted to return home and learn a lesson of sobriety, and that the world is not altogether dependent on him for its axe handles.

A RARE TREAT
For the Ticket Holders of the Tabernacle Course.
Non Ticket Holders Can Share in it, and Should Not Fail.

The approaching appearance of Mrs. Lulu Tyler Gates and the three stars, who compose her company will prove to be quite an event in the history of the Tabernacle course. In commenting on the talent of Mrs. Gates, a prominent writer recently said in the Chicago Record-Herald: "Lulu Tyler Gates is a remarkable woman. In reading and recitation she gives unmistakable evidence of that indefinable something which soothes, inspires and cheers all who are fortunate enough to hear her. It is impossible to convey in words her power of expression and delivery, her easy, graceful gestures, her accent, her intonation and her matchless self-control. They must be seen and felt to be appreciated. There is in her rendition a peculiar charm which leaves eloquently and beautifully unexpressed that which cannot be spoken." This talented quartette of artists will fill an engagement at the Tabernacle on Friday night, December 28th. If you miss this number [No. 2] of the Tabernacle course, you lose one of the best of the whole lot. The people are again music-hungry and a large attendance is predicted.

SUIT OVER OIL
Commonwealth's Attorney
Seeks to Confiscate
38,000 Gallons.

Commonwealth's Attorney Denry P. Smith Wednesday sued the Standard Oil Company for $160 damages and the confiscation, by the State of a tank of oil containing 8,000 barrels. The oil was condemned at Cadiz by Inspector John S. Lawrence as being five degrees under test required by law and unsafe for illuminating purposes. The Standard Oil agents shipped the oil to this city and C. O. Prowse, local inspector, found it only one or two degrees under the legal requirement and consented to the local managers emptying the condemned oil into storage tanks containing 30,000 gallons which tested three degrees above the requirements. Samples of this mixture were tested by Mr. Prowse and pronounced satisfactory. It is alleged in the petition that Mr. Prowse had no right to make a second inspection of the condemned oil and that mixing the grades in the storage tanks was contrary to law.

POLICEMEN AND FIREMEN
Banquet the City Council and Other Officials.
MANY SPEECHES MADE.

False Alarm of Fire Breaks Up the Feast at Eleven O'clock.

The members of the police force and fire department gave a dinner to the city officials and a few guests at the Fire Department building Thursday night. About fifty were present.

The repeat consisted of turkey, opossum, rabbit, ham and other meats, cakes, fruit, etc.

It was served under the personal direction of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Morris, who reside in the department headquarters.

Following the dinner a number of happy speeches were made. Mayor Meacham presided as toastmaster and speeches were made by the following gentlemen:

"My Busy Day," by Judge L. T. Bausher. He described not only his own busy days in trying 800 cases in one year, but had something pleasant to say about the busy days of the other officials.

"I'll Look Into It," was responded to by Attorney J. Walter Knight, who handled his subject in a very entertaining way.

"The Ring of the Hammer" was discussed by Councilman J. B. Jackson, president of the Commercial Club, and Councilman L. H. Davis followed with a speech on "The Best Town on Earth."

Both gentlemen discussed the general prosperity in Hopkinsville, and the great improvements going on.

Chief Tilley, of the Clarksville Fire Department, was then called upon to respond to the toast "The Next Best Town."

He defended his city in a pleasant speech and poked a lot of good-natured fun at the Hopkinsville fire company and criticized the council for not providing the company with something to "fight fire with."

Fire Chief Hester was the last regular speaker of the evening who discussed "What I Would Have Done in Princeton." He said he would have telephoned the Chief of Police that a mob was in his way and to please clear the street, which the Chief would, of course, have done in very short order and the fire would have been put out.

Mr. Green H. Champlin was called upon as an "extra," to answer Dr. Jackson's remarks on the "Hammer," but unfortunately just as he was warming up an alarm of fire was turned in.

The mayor told the guests not to get excited, that it was probably only the riot alarm to give notice that the mob was coming [and that the policemen present could retire and give such assistance as might be necessary in arresting the night marauders].

The Clarksville visitors, however, (Chief of Police Robinson, Fire Chief Tilley and Fireman Metcalfe,) became so excited that they led a general exodus from the building, and not till they reached the street was it found out that it was a false alarm.

Mr. Champlin will finish his speech next time.

TWO NEW HOMES
To be Erected on Seventh Street in Spring.

Mr. Lucian H. Davis has sold his pretty residence on Seventh and Belmont streets to Mr. J. P. Tate and possession will be given January 1st. He has in turn bought the vacant lot further down the street known as the Frankel lot, and will build upon it an elegant stone residence in the spring. The lot adjoining his has been purchased by Mr. Monroe Dalton who will also build a handsome home as soon as the building season arrives. Seventh street is already a street of elegant homes and these will add to its reputation in that regard.

Mrs. Ethel Hale and children will go to Mayfield to day to spend the holidays.

HUFFAKER HANGS
A Moral Pervert to Pay the Death Penalty at Eddy-ville Prison.
Murdered, Without Provocation, a Fellow Convict
In Prison.

Eddyville, Dec. 21.—Possessed of the vices of both savage and civilized man, with the virtues of neither, a moral pervert, and without exception the most dangerous and inhuman convict ever confined in the walls of either of the State penitentiaries, Ben Huffaker, serving a life sentence for murder committed in Pulaski county, will be hanged inside the walls at Eddyville penitentiary for the willful murder of a fellow convict, B. Shirley, an inoffensive day, who was sent from Barren county. No provocation whatsoever existed for the Shirley murder, and the jury readily returned a death verdict.

Ex-Senator N. J. Utley, appointed by the court to defend Huffaker, appealed the case to the higher court on the plea that being already under sentence for life he could not, without being pardoned, be placed on trial for a crime committed while in prison. The case was tried at the May term of the Lyon Court, 1905, and appealed. The matter was taken up and finally passed upon by the Appellate Court last week, affirming the sentence.

Public Sale.

On Thursday, Dec. 27th, 1906, I will sell, on the Uphur Buckner Farm, at Bolivar, Christian county, Ky., which I have rented for the present year, 1906, about 15 mules, one horse, wagons, mowers, binders, hay rake, plows, harrows, etc.

Terms made known on day of sale. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock a.m. R. F. RIVES.

Curtis Jett, on the witness stand at Cynthiana, Thursday, confessed that he killed Marshall Jim Cockrell, but swore he shot in self defense. He claimed nobody else was implicated in the killing. He repudiated his previous confession implicating Jim Hargis and Ed Calahan. Bill Britton has already been convicted of complicity in the murder.

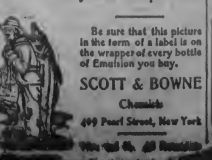

Admiral Dewey, in an interview, expressed great concern over the stagnation of promotion in the navy.

All Run Down

THIS is a common expression we hear on every side. Unless there is some organic trouble, the condition can doubtless be remedied. Your doctor is the best adviser. Do not dose yourself with all kinds of advertised remedies—get his opinion. More than likely you need a concentrated fat food to enrich your blood and tone up the system.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil

Is just such a food in its best form. It will build up the weakened and wasted body when all other foods fail to nourish. If you are run down or emaciated, give it a trial; it cannot hurt you. It is essentially the best possible nourishment for delicate children and pale, anaemic girls. We will send you a sample free.

HOG CHOLERA
The Problem of a Cure is Now Solved.

The much dreaded disease, hog cholera, has lost its terror to those who are posted on modern methods of treating the disease. It is now a curable disease. Any practical farmer who will follow the instructions given by the manufacturers can stop the worst outbreak of disease that ever came and save almost every hog able to take the treatment and restore the herd to thrive in a few days time.

The Snoddy Remedy, manufactured by Dr. J. H. Snoddy Remedy Co., of Alton, Ill., has been used in this country and has proven itself a positive cure for the most dreaded disease. It is now on sale in Hopkinsville, by the Planters Hardware Co., Inc., who will furnish any farmer or hog raiser one of Snoddy's books on hog cholera, free of charge, who will call at their store for it. Full directions for curing hog cholera is fully explained in this little booklet. Every farmer should have one. They are free, and it is hoped that the people will study up on this new method of treating the disease so they can feel safe from the disease when raising hogs and also so they will understand how to keep the cholera out of this country.

The remedy is also on sale by E. W. Stegar & Dickson, down at Masonville, who will also furnish the farmer a copy of Snoddy's book on hog cholera, who will call there for it.

This remedy is the greatest worm remedy and thrift producer for hogs there is on the market. The farmer gain they will make from its effect will return the farmer an average of $5 in this extra gain for every dollar worth of the medicine he uses properly and right. Hence the remedy is not an expense to a farmer but is a profitable investment, and one that pays a greater profit than anything else on the farm the same amount of money can be invested into.

The remedy is certain in its action when properly used. It is impossible for a cholera germ or worm of any kind to live in a hog while that hog is under the influence of this remedy. The remedy will destroy every worm or germ of this kind and the hog will get well in a short while and be as thrifty as he ever was.

There are many imitations of this remedy being put on the market. Let everyone be careful that they do not buy an imitation of the food. The public will know the genuine Snoddy Remedy by its having Dr. Snoddy's picture on every label. If a medicine for hog cholera is offered you that is claimed to be the Snoddy Remedy and does not have Dr. Snoddy's picture on the label, refuse it, because none are genuine without this picture. Dr. J. H. Snoddy is the original discoverer of the remedy and the Dr. J. H. Snoddy Remedy Co., uses his picture as a trademark. For further particulars call on the Planters Hardware Co., Incorporated, Hopkinsville, or E. W. Stegar & Dickson, at Masonville, Ky. The remedy is manufactured by Dr. J. H. Snoddy Remedy Co., Alton, Ill.

CHRISTMAS TIDINGS.

Shoppers Have Bought Very Largely in Spite of Bad Weather.

AT THE CHURCHES.

What the Sunday Schools
Are to Do Next Week.

The rain during the week has put the county roads and streets in a terribly bad condition, but during Christmas-tide it is impossible to keep people from venturing forth to purchase things for their friends and loved ones. Might as well try to force a stream upward. The Christmas spirit is irresistible. Notwithstanding what the English people call "nasty" weather, the throngs of people who have come in on trains over the railroad, pulled through mud on every avenue leading into the city, as well as the old and young ladies of the city and everybody that has the spirit of the season in them, have been "making it lively" for all the merchants. As a result bank accounts are larger and business men are happier.

The fine tobacco season has had a great deal to do with making business bright. The weed was "in order" at the right time for farmers to deliver their crops, and we believe contributed more towards making homes glad next Tuesday than anything else. It takes money to buy Christmas presents, and if it hadn't been for "tobacco money" where was the money to come from? There's no use in saying what "echo" would reply—everybody could not spend what they didn't have, because everybody's credit is not good. Tobacco did the business, and the $200,000 that has about been all turned loose by the different dealers has certainly been a boon to many a man who would have been shut off from making hearts happy had it not been for "tobacco money."

There is an old saying that "A pretty Christmas makes a fat graveyard," but a happy Christmas hurts nobody. Next week may be a "beaut," so far as the weather goes.

Old Boreas and Jack Frost may get on a "tear" if they want too. Nobody is going to mind it. The house will be full of fun, fire crackers, good things to eat, happy hearts will swell with gratitude and love, and bad weather won't mar the most joyful season of the year. Everybody will have gotten what he expected, and given what he expected, and more, and Christmas of 1906 will be one of the best for many, many years, and tobacco is "in it."

There are many reasons for believing that the stores and different business houses are making arrangements to close up early next Tuesday morning. This is because we are becoming more metropolitan in our ideas, for one reason. Another is that the Christian business men of Hopkinsville have kind hearts and want to see their salespeople take a day off and enjoy themselves. They know they need it. Men are getting better, no matter what the pessimists say. It hasn't been a very great many years since every business house kept open all day Christmas, not even allowing a clerk to go and see his "girl" at night. But how different now—many of them get the biggest part of the day, and the night, too.

The Sunday school children are not—never are—forgotten. Every church in the city is arranging for an entertainment of some kind for the little ones.

The Elks, liberally as 'the sun on a clear day, when everybody is blessed by this shining—have, during this week been systematically securing and enrolling the names of every poor person in the city who stands in need, and when the day of all days comes, wagons will be loaded with good things for them and delivered at their doors. They give because it is part of their creed—and the best of other orders can do no more.

The colleges are already about depopulated. The pupils have all gone to spend the season at home or with some friend. Books and music are forgotten and for a brief week they will have nothing of anything but the joys that only come with Christmas.

The city public schools turned the children loose Friday at noon. The faithful teachers, hard as they tried failed to get their pupils down to work Friday morning, as they were so filled with the Christmas spirit that they couldn't concentrate their minds on their studies. So they just turned them out until next Jan. 1.

At the Asylum a big Christmas dinner will be given to the patients. Fresh oysters and roast pork will be served, with addition of almost innumerable dishes. A suitable present will also be given to each of the unfortunates.

Christmas week is the time for the Forbes Manufacturing Co. to take an inventory. Many of the mechanics will lay off, but every department will be open. Enough men will be retained to supply all demands in every department and you can get anything you want.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Christmas entertainment of the Sunday School of the Baptist church will be given on Thursday night. #### CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

THIS IN KENTUCKY.

Prohibition Wave Has Almost Covered the State.

The drouth in Kentucky continues to spread, and there are now ninety-four totally "dry" counties out of a total of 119.

Two months ago there were eighty-two "dry" counties, but since then many precinct and county elections have been held to vote whether liquor should be sold or not. In these, twelve counties have gone "dry," and the only victory gained by the "wets" was to carry the towns of Cloverport, Middlesboro and the portions of Nelson county.

There isn't a county in Kentucky that is totally "wet."

There are only four counties that are approximately saturated. These are Meade, Jefferson, Kenton and Campbell, all along the Ohio River in the northern part of the State. Todd county, on the southern border was "wet," but the "drys" captured it in their recent raid.

There are ninety-four counties without any saloons, nineteen with saloons at only one place, nine with saloons at two places, and six where liquor is sold at three or more points.

Liquor is sold in Christian county in four places, Hopkinsville, Pembroke, Crofton and Gracey.

AMUSEMENTS.

Billy Kersand's famous minstrels will be the attraction at Holland's Opera House next Tuesday night, Dec. 25.

This attraction has been greatly enlarged this season, no expense being spared to make it one of the leading minstrel shows of the present day. The company numbers 35 people, including Prof. James S. Lacy's Challenge Cornet Band of 20 pieces, the grand street pageant which takes place at 11:30 a. m. on the date of the performance being a revelation in itself. A band concert of choice selections will be rendered each evening at 7:30 o'clock in front of the theater. The first part setting used this season is one of the most novel, amazing and startling before the theatrical world to-day. It represents the inside of a mammoth watermelon. This beautiful setting was designed and produced by the Daniels Studio, of Chicago, Ill.

The gallery will be reserved exclusively for colored people.

"The Missouri Girl" with "Zeke" and "Daisy" and their fun-making associates will be seen at Holland's Opera House Jan. 4.

Fancies.

If we could put as much joy into our lives as a woman can startle us with, there would be lots more fun in living.

In one day twenty-seven women complained to an English police magistrate because their husbands had kicked them. What those English women need is a good, old-fashioned, third class affair stuffed with hair that the women sometimes wear! What they need is—well, if they should happen to live near a brickyard and—I beg pardon, but perhaps you get the idea anyhow.

Billet-doux rhymes with "kiddo" and when wife finds one in the breast pocket of her husband's best coat, it frequently ends that way.

It sometimes happens that the man who has taken all the spoils, must take the blame, too. To him that hath, etc.

I went fishing up in Wisconsin last spring and had "just a lovely time." Besides catching a goodly string of fish, I made several observations of benefit to humanity. I noted that one species of fish sing. I hooked this peculiar fish just at daybreak the morning of my arrival. He took the line merrily and as it spun out upon the reel, I caught the strains of a song that always delights the heart of the fisherman. It is needless to say that the fish was a bass. Therefore the singing fish is the bass. The bluefish does not sing but he is very melancholy. The sea fish is a real drunkard. The most scholarly fish is the trout with specks. I live in Chicago, you know, and when I hooked a shark, I felt right at home. Why are some people like, and not like, the goldfish? There is plenty of fish about them but no gold. The last day I caught a fatfish. This reminded me that I pay $50 per for my flat in the city and I came home forthwith for fear I wouldn't get my money's worth. This is all I know about fish, except that they never bite when you take your friend to the same resort where you have caught lunkers for years. Well, I've got to dive for my train, now. Good-by.

More bed covers have the call these nights.

A Pennsylvania section hand sent his overalls to a Chinese laundry. They went through the wash all right, but when the "chink" started in to iron the bifurcated toga, he accidentally struck a railroad torpedo. Instead of changing the Chinese, it started him, and a mad ryer down the track. At last reports he was headed for New York maimed of grass and open bridges.

A friend of mine and evidently has been reading some of my stuff, says the prize sentence for ungrammatical construction is that of the boy who leaned over the fence and asked of the shepherd, "Be them sheeps yours?" He says every word is learned. It was raised in the country and it means all right to me, but maybe he knows.

Some women are never out of temper. They have it to give away all the time.

A friend of mine got out of a pretty tight place yesterday morning by a quick witted reply. His wife found a strange hair on his coat and asked him where he got it. He replied, wisely, "From the head of the bed, dear."

The woman who can, and does, peek at the last chapter of the book she is reading to discover the final outcome, must suffer terribly because she cannot find out whether it is going to be a boy or a girl.

The man who has been chasing his straw hat all summer must now be content with losing his gloves—and this isn't half as much fun for the observing public.

A Rhode Island man sold his wife for $300. Some men are born lucky.

XMAS IN PRISON.

Ladies And Gentlemen Going Down to Play Santa Claus.

Representatives from the three different Endeavor societies of the city, as well as from other churches, are arranging to go to Eddyville Christmas day and play Santa Claus. A large number of suitable Christmas gifts have been collected and will be taken down and distributed among the prisoners. The gifts this year from merchants are greater than at any previous time and there is greater local interest in the work among the unfortunates than ever before. Anyone having anything to send down to the prisoners can communicate with Miss Lucy Starling, Superintendent of Kentucky prison work. If not too heavy, packages will be carried down by the ladies and gentlemen who have decided to spend the greatest day of the year in prison with the unfortunates.
